Two Congressmen Call on U.S. To Stake Claims to Antarctic

Official Attacks Anti-Dutch Fight

Asserts Campaign Hurting Indonesian

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Former Vice President Mohammed Hatta charged today that officials have so mishandled the current anti-Dutch campaign that they are "hurting Indonesia more than the Dutch."

In an open letter appearing in newspapers throughout this sprawling island republic, the leader who negotiated independence from the Netherlands in 1949 asked: "Is it necessary for the Indonesian people to sacrifice and suffer to speed up the return of West Irian to the republic?"

The campaign of seizing the 1½-billion-dollar Dutch investment in Indonesia and forcing most of the 46,000 Dutch citizens out of the country began Dec. 2 in retaliation for the Netherlands' refusal to hand over West New Guinea. Indonesia calls the area West Irian and claims it should have been surrendered in the 1949 independence agreement.

Hatta said famine is facing the country "not because rice is short but because of disorder in distribution, shipping and communications." He blamed the disorder on the West Irian Action Committee, which has led the campaign.

"If we had planned, our people would not suffer," Hatta said. "Due to lack of planning, an economic calamity is approaching." The campaign was touched off by the U.N. failure to approve a resolution backing the Indonesian position.

"I reiterate," Hatta said, "Dutch, not Indonesian, interests should be undermined. The Dutch economy here must be liquidated, but not in a fashion which will cripple us." Hatta's attack was expected by some foreign observers here to widen the breach between him and President Sukarno which led to Hatta's retirement from the government a year ago. A parliamentary committee has been trying to reconcile them before Sukarno leaves about Jan. 5 on a trip abroad officially billed as a rest cure.

Reds Speeding Survey Of Shore of Polar Region

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two senior congressional Republicans today called on the U.S. government to stake out its claims to the antarctic.

One of them, Rep. Tollefson (R-Wash.), said he has been informed that the nation's top strategy-making group—the National Security Council—"approves the objectives" of Tollefson's antarctic claims bill now before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Rep. Judd (R-Minn.), a senior committee member, said, "Our government ought to press now for a settlement (of antarctic claims) that will be just and equitable."

Otherwise, Judd said, rival claimants are likely to get into years of hassling as the claims get firmer and new values are found for the vast subcontinent.

The legislators spoke in interviews on the heels of fresh reports of international interest in South Pole area. Moscow radio reported two heavily laden expeditions are heading for the magnetic pole and the geographic South Pole. British and New Zealand groups also are on their way to the geographic center, where a U.S. scientific expedition is already encamped. The Soviets are hurrying an icebreaker to survey along the shore of an unclaimed area.

Although American expeditions have explored far more of the frozen land than has any other nation, the United States has not laid claim to any territory here.

Site Leased Here for New County Court

Columbiana County commissioners Friday signed a one-year lease for a room in the Masonic Temple which will be the site of one of the new county courts.

President Walter A. Hunston said the owners, the Salem Masonic Temple Board Inc., agreed to make alterations to the room, which once housed the bowling alleys in the temple, by Wednesday.

A side door will be used to gain entrance to the courtroom.

The rent will be $95 per month with utilities provided by the Masonic Board, Hunston said. The commissioners previously rented a ground floor room in the Bauknecht building in East Palestine and a former store room in the Heim Building in Lisbon, for sites of the other two county courts.

Rent for the Bauknecht Building room is $70 per month, and Heim Building space, $75. However, commissioners must pay for electricity and heat in those locations.

The new county courts will begin operation Wednesday, replacing the 27 former justices of the peace courts in the county.

Judge John Fitch of Lisbon will preside in the northwestern district, with his court in Salem. Judge Luther Donbar of Columbiana will preside at East Palestine, with jurisdiction in the eastern district; and Judge Samuel Crawford of Glasgow will officiate at Lisbon, with jurisdiction in the central and southern districts.

Judge Denies Taking Bribes

Schoolfield Answers Charges In Speech

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Criminal Court Judge Raulston Schoolfield denied Friday night that he had ever taken a bribe. He said that allegations that he had done so stemmed from what he called a contemptible plot and conspiracy.

In an hour-long television speech, delivered first here and then in Nashville, Schoolfield answered charges made against him last week before the Senate Rackets Committee by saying:

1. That he emphatically denied any implications that he had taken a bribe to quash conspiracy charges against 13 Teamsters Union members.

2. That Asst. Dist. Atty. Gen. Harold Brown had testified correctly that he, Brown, gave the judge $1,000 for his 1954 gubernatorial campaign fund from a bondsman named Sam Jones, but indicated he had no knowledge that it may have been contributed by a defendant who was later paroled in his court.

3. That he acknowledged his failure to report expenditures in his segregationist campaign for governor.

4. That investigators for the committee, which he called a federal engine of tyranny, had aimed not at labor-management cases but only at him because of his stand against centralized government and for states rights.

Schoolfield in his speech defended in detail the allegations that $20,000 was passed to fix the cases against the 13 Teamsters and another $1,000 to free Spence Galloway, who had been convicted of receiving and concealing stolen property, and that he had not reported his campaign expenses.

His defense in the Teamsters case:

He still believes his legal decisions were correct in first quashing the indictment and then, after higher court reversal, directing an acquittal of the 12 defendants who showed up for trial.

The money allegedly withdrawn from Teamsters Union funds to fix the case had been withdrawn more than a year before the action heretofore referred to.

In the Galloway case: He had no doubt of Galloway's guilt but had paroled him on a plea to a lesser offense after he had established that he had a good reputation, and after two trials.

He expressed confidence in the integrity of Brown, who had passed the controversial $1,000 to Schoolfield.

In conceding that he had failed to report his campaign expenditures as required by law, the judge said it was not customary for losing candidates to do so, that he had not exceeded the statutory limitation in the brief campaign, and that he had just not thought about it.

Police Charge Two Who Gave Loot As Gifts

Washingtonville, Leetonia Men Held In Burglary

Pennsylvania state police have filed charges of burglary and attempted breaking and entering against two men who allegedly looted an appliance store at Enon Valley, Pa., Dec. 11 and then gave away the stolen merchandise as Christmas gifts.

The defendants are William Craig, 26, of Leetonia, and William Longanecker, 30, of Washingtonville.

Craig, a service station operator in Washingtonville, is recovering in Salem City Hospital from a leg wound suffered when he was shot as he and Longanecker returned Dec. 20, ostensibly to burglarize the Martin Vogel appliance store at Enon Valley a second time, Pennsylvania authorities said.

Longanecker, taken into custody Friday, is now in the Lawrence County Jail at New Castle, Pa., awaiting a hearing.

Craig will face arraignment when he is discharged from the hospital. According to Pennsylvania State Troopers William Ball and Joseph P. Sheranok of the New Castle barracks, Craig and Longanecker burglarized the Enon Valley store the night of Dec. 11, taking about $1,200 worth of television and radio sets and miscellaneous small household appliances.

The police yesterday recovered the merchandise, which, they said, had been given away by the men as Christmas gifts. The articles were returned to Martin Vogel, owner of the store.

The defendants were trailed to Salem after they returned to the Enon Valley store Friday night, Dec. 20, and Craig was shot by the owner's son, Martin Vogel Jr., aged 25, the troopers said.

Because of the previous burglary the family, whose home adjoins the store, had been on guard against any recurrence of thefts during the holiday season.

Constable William Kelly of Little Beaver (Pa.) Township said the store owners observed the suspects' car drive up to the store, leave and then return. When Craig got out of the car, the police said, young Vogel fired from a window of the home with a 30-40 deer rifle hitting Craig in the leg.

Longanecker drove back to Salem and took Craig to City Hospital where he was admitted as an "accidental shooting" victim, police said. The men told hospital attendants at the time that Craig's own rifle accidentally discharged.

State Troopers Ball and Sheranok praised Salem police, Patrolman Robert Bertolotto of Washingtonville and Patrolman Allen Gibson of Leetonia for "exceptionally fine police work and cooperation" in helping to solve the case.

Pottery Settlement Plans Are Pushed

EAST PALESTINE — Receivers of the W. S. George Pottery Co. have begun contacting by mail unsecured creditors of the company for their proof-of-claim forms and to ascertain if they will accept a 50-cents-on-the-dollar final settlement.

The pottery has been under federal receivership since early in July. Since then, the company has operated under limited conditions.

A majority of the unsecured creditors must approve of the 50 per cent settlement if the reorganization plan is to meet the approval of the district bankruptcy court in Youngstown.

This will be the final legal step before calling for the $200,000 pledged by local individuals and organizations in October and November. Jan. 10 is the deadline for collection of the pledges.

Former pottery employees are signing up today at the company offices, submitting their proof-of-claim and acceptance forms for both vacation pay and back wages.

Joe Gonda Makes Sopes to Track, Photograph Missiles

Astronomer Shows Ingenuity

By DAVE AILES

Tracking outer space missiles, finding planets and sighting the Soviets' Sputniks 1 and 2 are some of the thrilling experiences which have occurred to Joe Gonda of 495 Franklin St. through his hobby — the construction of telescopes.

For 30 years this pastime has enabled him to study and to film astral bodies billions of miles away.

AMONG GONDA'S achievements is the filming of the Sputnik 1 rocket two weeks after the Russians launched the first man-made outer space missile.

The picture was taken with a .35 mm camera and high speed film from the image Gonda saw through his hand-made reflector type telescope, an instrument that can magnify a missile more than 1,200 times.

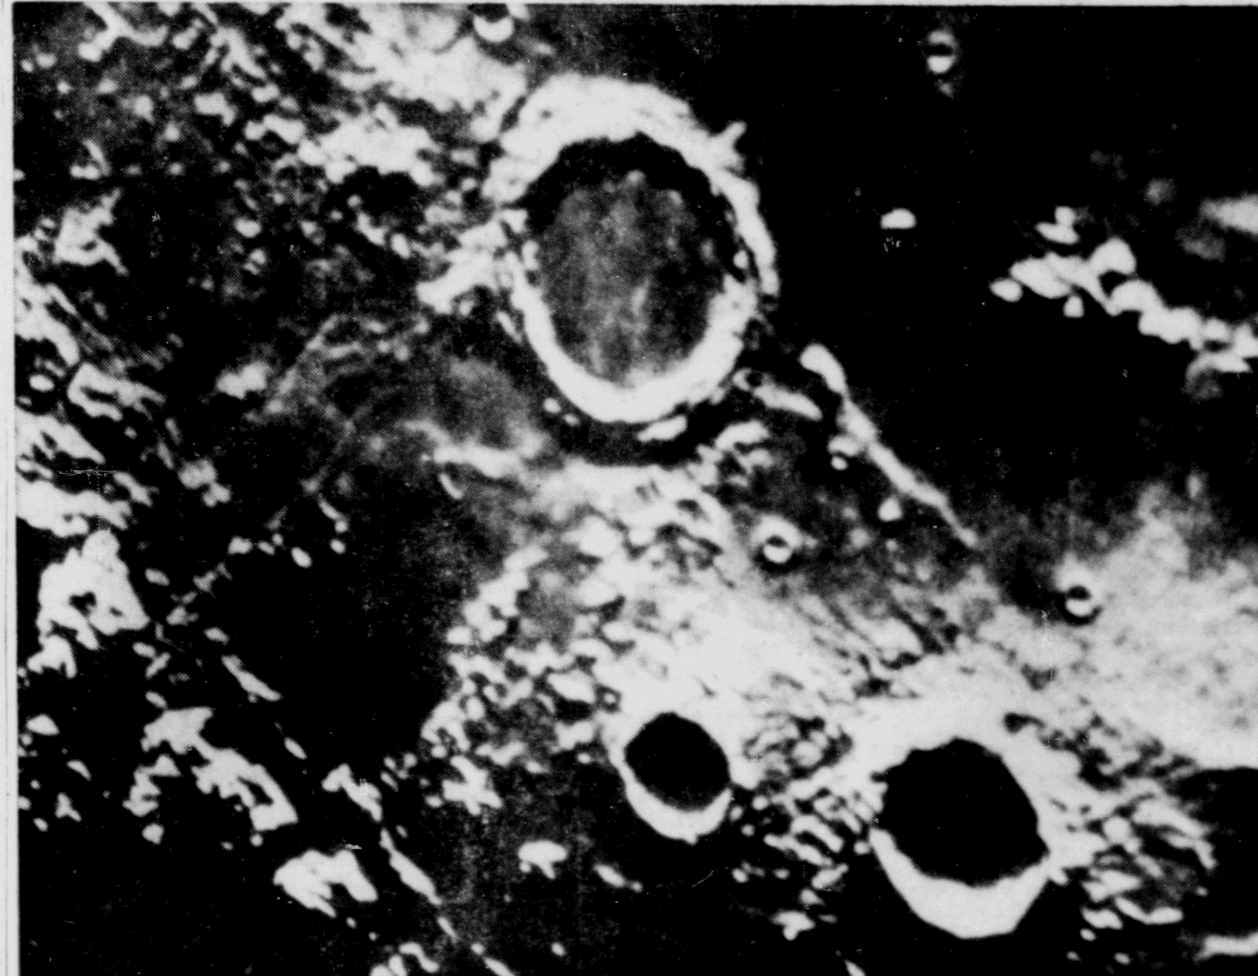

Mr. Gonda has been able to study all of the planets except Pluto, which is more than four billion miles from earth.

One of the celestial bodies he has filmed through a telescope is Saturn which is shown magnified 1,200 times.

HIS INTEREST in telescopes began when his mother gave him a 10 cent toy telescope when he was 12 years old.

At that time Mr. Gonda lived on a dairy farm near Ellsworth, and he would stand for hours looking up at the stars and the moon

Fourteen Other Diggers Survive Gas Explosion

Men Trapped 500 Feet Underground In Sprawling Shaft

AMONATE, Va. (AP)—Rescue workers today recovered the bodies of 11 miners killed late Friday when a gas explosion trapped 25 men below ground in a mine straddling the Virginia-West Virginia border. Fourteen other miners were brought out of the colliery uninjured shortly after midnight.

Canvas was draped over the victims, carried out of Mine No. 31 of the Pocahontas Fuel Co. on a coal car. About 100 persons looked on in the first gray light of an overcast day.

The miners were hemmed in 500 feet underground. Company officials said all the men originally trapped by the explosion were believed to be accounted for.

Amonate is in southwest Virginia, 20 miles west of Bluefield, Va.-W.Va.

Removed From Mine

Bodies of the dead were removed from the sprawling mine through a shaft located in West Virginia, nearly three miles from the main entry shaft where the survivors were brought out.

Ironically, Pocahontas officials said all but three of the victims had just five more hours in the mine. They would have been laid off indefinitely at midnight under a plan to cut 70 per cent of the mine work force. The layoff of 534 employees was due to a shortage of coal orders.

This was the second disastrous explosion in Pocahontas Fuel Co. mine in the border coalfields in 11 months. A February gas explosion at a mine near Bishop, Va., snuffed out 37 lives.

Officials said there was no indication as to how the blast occurred.

William Fullerton, special assistant to the president of Pocahontas Fuel Co., said the bodies of three men were reached about 4 a. m. The other eight were located about two hours later.

Trapped In 2 Sections

The blast trapped men in two sections—a joy loading area (site of an automatic coal loading machine and a continuous mining area (also the site of automatic coal loading equipment).

The rescue work was painstaking as rescuers were forced to inch their way along slate-clogged passages filled with smoke and deadly gases. They carried oxygen tanks strapped to their backs.

Officials said the mine was

County Property Reappraisal In Offing

LISBON — Columbiana County is due for a property reappraisal either in 1958 or 1959, according to Auditor I. J. Vorndran.

The State Board of Tax Appeals has sent out to all auditors in the 88 counties uniform rules and regulations relating to the evaluation of real estate property for taxation purposes according to provisions of an amended senate bill adopted by the 102nd general assembly, he said.

Vorndran has asked for $180,000 to finance the reappraisal. The county has approximately 65,000 parcels of land to appraise. The forthcoming appraisal will be on the replacement value of 1956 costs.

Columbiana County's last reappraisal was in 1950 and cost the county $134,000. The replacement value was set at the 1941 figure, Ohio law stipulates that reappraisals must be made every six years, and each county must have conducted a reappraisal or be in process of conducting it by the year 1959.

It is expected that the county commissioners will have to issue bonds to finance the reappraisal as no funds have been set aside for this purpose.

REPORT CATHOLIC OPPRESSION

ROME — The Catholic News Service reported today that "a new form of systematic oppression" is being used by the Chinese Communists against Catholics in Canton.

Quoting an "eyewitness who has been able to leave China in the last few days" and bring news to missionary circles in Rome, CS said:

"Twice a week Catholics in Canton are forced to attend Communist party indoctrination meetings. Afterward, the priests and nuns are questioned individually about their thoughts on the Red regime and its efforts to break the ties between Chinese Catholics and the Vatican."

"I've got the answer to my problem. This is it. The reason everything goes wrong with me is because I am wrong myself. I'm all messed up inside because my thoughts are all wrong. How do we fix this?"

"I was greatly impressed by Bill's sharp insight, but I said, 'We don't fix it, but we're going to call on someone who can.' I took him outside and we stood by the car. 'Let's do some praying,' I suggested. 'You pray.'"

"I can see him now saying very simply and sincerely 'Lord, I see my trouble. I'm wrong on the inside. I ask you to make me right, because I can't make myself right.' That was his prayer, and it was effective, as subsequent events proved."

God helped him right then and there because all the way back to New York he acted like a changed man. He talked quietly and intelligently. I enjoyed being with him for the first time in weeks. I became hopeful that something had really happened to him and it had for certain.

That was almost 20 years ago and today that man is happy, useful and respected. He has learned how to make things go right. Right thinking and spiritual renewal made this possible.

WE HAVE REACHED the end of one year and another is about to begin. What better time is there to begin the attempt to understand yourself as Bill did? This is most important, for when you do understand yourself, then the process of rehabilitation can begin.

So to gain increased assurance that things may go right for you in 1958, since most of our failures are within, start by seeking to know and really find yourself. This will give you insight into the inner blocks and conflicts that now frustrate your full effectiveness. The next step after that might well be a spiritual change. Bring God more completely into your thinking. In so doing you will bring your life into that harmony that will enable you to make a splendid new beginning in the new year.

Bible Words for Today

MATTHEW 5:17 — "I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill." (King James Version)

Jesus came to fulfill the law and the prophets. Before He could fulfill, He had to know the law and the prophets. Jesus knew the Scripture. He quoted it when He was tempted in the wilderness.

He used it for His inaugural message in the synagogue at Nazareth. He quoted from the Old Testament in the Sermon on the Mount. He quoted from the Psalms when His body was dying on the cross.

In a Cleveland Hotel, I opened the table drawer to look for the Gideon Bible. I found it, but on top of it was a small placard generally placed on the outside of the hotel room door, "Please Do Not Disturb." The maid had accidentally placed this card on top of the Bible.

We do not have a sign like this in our homes but we could use one. In many homes the Bible is undisturbed while by the hour we look at television and listen to radio programs.

We do not disturb the Bible because the daily reading of God's Word will disturb us. "Love your neighbor as yourself" is disturbing. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness" does not tend to lull us to complacent living.

Jesus knew the law and Jesus fulfilled it. We must know the law if we are to fulfill it.

Confident Living
By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE
Problem of the Alcoholic

A friend of mine used to make quite a nuisance of himself as far as I was concerned. He kept coming to me for help but never did anything to help himself.

"Bill," I told him once, "I can't do anything for you."

"Then who can?" he asked. "Only God and you," I said. But I didn't seem to make much of an impression on him.

One day I was getting ready to drive to Allentown, Pennsylvania, to make a speech there, and he dropped into my office just as I was about to leave. He asked where I was going and I told him. "Fine," he said, "I'll go with you."

WELL, THIS DIDN'T fill me with any burning enthusiasm, but I agreed to take him when he promised he wouldn't talk along the way and get my mind off the speech I was to make.

He kept his promise, we got to Allentown, I made my speech, and we started back to New York. It was a beautiful moonlit night and I was enjoying the drive. But Bill felt that he was now freed from his promise and began again telling me about himself, that he couldn't get hold of himself, and so on, and so on — the same old story like a record needle stuck in a groove.

I had heard the story a good many times. We had made corrective suggestions but he wouldn't do anything about himself. So frankly I was getting a little tired of listening.

It was about midnight when we came to a roadside diner. We stopped and went in for hamburgers and coffee. They were good and we ordered a second round. Bill was just about to bite into his second hamburger when suddenly he stopped, bounced the sandwich down on his plate and shouted, "I've got it! I've got it!"

"What have you got?" I asked, startled.

"I've got the answer to my problem. This is it. The reason everything goes wrong with me is because I am wrong myself. I'm all messed up inside because my thoughts are all wrong. How do we fix this?"

"I was greatly impressed by Bill's sharp insight, but I said, 'We don't fix it, but we're going to call on someone who can.' I took him outside and we stood by the car. 'Let's do some praying,' I suggested. 'You pray.'"

"I can see him now saying very simply and sincerely 'Lord, I see my trouble. I'm wrong on the inside. I ask you to make me right, because I can't make myself right.' That was his prayer, and it was effective, as subsequent events proved."

Sign of Encouragement

The old year is ending on a note of pessimism. In spite of the gaiety and enthusiasm of the holiday season, there is a general feeling of anxiety plus some out and out expressions of fear for the future.

Most of this is tied to economic conditions, the rate of business, unemployment, and a fall off in consumer buying. Caution is the keynote of the day.

But there are other factors in this undercurrent of pessimism. The frantic race among nations for dominance over outer space has an ominous tone about it. The reaction appears to be that nothing good can come of it. The present state is one of frustration.

WORLD PEACE and security seem farther and farther away. Every move in this direction brings a counter move of threat and reprisal. Distrust and suspicion permeate both sides of the council table.

First Methodist — The Sacrament of Holy Communion will be observed from 7 to 9 p.m. in the First Methodist Church Tuesday at a watch night program which will include a service from 11 to midnight sponsored by the Senior Youth Fellowship.

Beginning at midnight, a party will be held in Fellowship Hall. College students will be recognized at the 10:30 a.m. worship hour Sunday during a program arranged by Martha Jane Frary.

Participants will include Kathryn and Janice Groves, Richard Aubill, James Cosgarea Jr., and Frank Stoerke Jr.

The church high school ensemble and Patricia Wykoff, soloist, will provide the music.

A reception, arranged by the Woman's Society of Christian Service, will follow.

"A Preview of the New Year" will be given at the Intermediate Youth Fellowship meeting Sunday afternoon at 5.

Senior Choir will rehearse Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Damascus Methodist — "1958 AD" will be the sermon subject of Rev. James Cope during the 10:15 o'clock worship service Sunday morning in the Damascus Methodist Church.

Mrs. Harold Wulf will sing a vocal solo, and the Senior Choir will sing "Glory Be to God."

Sunday School is at 9:15 a.m. Senior Methodist Youth Fellowship will meet at 5 p.m. Sunday at the church to leave for a missionary emphasis program to be presented at the East Fairfield Methodist Church.

A continuous candlelight communion service will be held on New Year's Eve from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The Senior Choir will rehearse Thursday evening at 7:30.

Woven through this fabric of uncertainty is the insatiable power of politics, a ruthless element that never ceases to play its influence on every turn and twist of events, whether economic, sociological or political.

The result is an over-all feeling of insecurity, and this at a time when more and more safeguards for security are a part of established life and living than any time in history. Contrasted with certain periods of the past, today should be a day of confidence, and it isn't.

However, there is one sign of encouragement on the horizon. More and more people, as individuals, are seeking the answer to these problems in an area of solution outside strictly economic, social, or political sources.

More and more are turning to their faith and trust in God, not to provide more jobs or better business conditions or bring about peace or eliminate fear, but to submit their fate and future to His hands.

Perhaps we are finally learning that some of the institutions on which we placed our sole reliance in the past are not enough in themselves to assure peace and contentment.

PERHAPS, at last, we are coming to realize that a government or a group or a system does not take the place of individual responsibility to meet and adjust to life's problems.

Remove all else from a man and he still has left one source of strength and support, and that source is Spiritual. When he turns completely to that source, anxiety disappears from the present and the future knows no fear.

Now is the time to join with millions of sincerely seeking men and women in search of the one reliable solution.

When he stops being cute

This is his very first New Year. He's celebrating it in his own talented fashion, just being cute.

Last year thousands of boys and girls were arrested as juvenile delinquents. They had all been cute—once!

But did they have the priceless example of active Christian parents? Were they given moral and spiritual training in the Church? Did they grow up in a Christian atmosphere?

This young fellow can't be absolutely sure that the New Year is worth celebrating. His future is in the hands of his parents. But he's smiling because of his confidence in them.

During this New Year their faith in God, and the sincerity of their relationship with the Church will begin to determine just what their son is going to be when he stops being cute.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

999 Million To 1 It Would Work

The best educated guess of the moment is that the White House budget will pack in at least an extra billion for a stepped-up missile program.

There is a whimsical notion about what to do with one million dollars of the extra billion. Theserious thinkers would still have 999 million for their weighty ideas.

Why not spend the whimsical million on all groups of six or more kids who show up with a responsible sponsor over 21 years old and want a do-it-yourself rocket kit?

Actually, the kit would consist of a rocket tube, with suggested directions for doing the rest. That would be the idea — to make the kids and their sponsors use ingenuity.

What we have in mind, frankly, is that a great many youngsters in this country who have been expending oodles of ingenuity on souped-up automobiles that cannot be operated safely on public roads would be diverted into learning how to soup-up the missiles that are going to be the basis of the new weapons system of the United States.

Many of them are going ahead on their own, and some of them are doing about as well with their experiments as the experts at Cape Canaveral.

All that the federal project could do would be to give them access to trustworthy rocket casings and basic information about the theory of propulsion and specifications for rocket fuel.

This is the way the automobile era got its traction in this country — millions of young Americans acquiring know-how by personal experience.

It is the way the age of aviation sprouted wings — millions of young Americans building model planes, flying them, thinking about them and learning everything there was to know about aerodynamics.

The only difference between what has been done before and what we need to do now is that now we are in a hurry.

We need to get the hang of rocketry in no more time than it takes a rocket to disappear when it leaves the ground. There is a bright boy in this country who will have an idea that will transform the whole technique of building and firing rockets. It may even be a bright girl. We must not forget that girls and women moved in on the ground floor of car and plane development and contributed their ingenuity as freely as the boys and men.

To sum up: If the kids worked half as hard on missiles as they work on their souped-up cars, it would take much more than a year to make Sputnik I and II look like a pair of over-aged and under-powered Dorts.

Everybody Admires John Foster Dulles

No man in public life is more dedicated to his task than John Foster Dulles. Yet, even his most enthusiastic admirers are being forced to take into account the criticism that is undermining his stature as chief architect and exponent of the Eisenhower administration's foreign policy.

They can explain in complete detail the logic of what he is doing. They can point out with firm conviction that no man is better equipped than he is equipped by experience to steer a rational course.

But the fact is that they are on the defensive and that Mr. Dulles is on the offensive. Why?

The reason explains more about the international situation than it explains about the secretary of state.

It is not, in fact, Mr. Dulles who is the butt of criticism and dissatisfaction both at home and abroad so much as it is the insoluble problem that he is charged with solving. He has a great deal in common with another member of the Eisenhower Cabinet, Ezra Taft Benson, who is being flamed for failure to solve an insoluble problem in agriculture.

The insoluble problem Mr. Dulles is grappling with is how to gratify his countrymen's desire to do suddenly and completely a number of affirmative things about international relations which cannot be done suddenly and may never be done at all.

He is like the manager of the baseball team who must take the blame for its failure to run away with the pennant race when, in fact, it cannot run away because it must win its games one at a time and stands to lose some, to boot. Mr. Dulles, himself, is philosopher enough to live with adversity without succumbing to it, but his countrymen cannot match him in what appears to them to be an attitude of defeatism.

Spokesmen for the political opposition, moreover, cannot be expected to temper their oratorical winds to the shorn lamb, either. There must be times lately when Mr. Dulles feels like getting Dean Acheson on the telephone and talking over his predecessor's experiences with adversity.

The question for President Eisenhower is at what point it will become necessary to replace Mr. Dulles if dissatisfaction with his viewpoint of what is and what is not attainable keeps growing.

There is always the possibility that a man who has become firmly committed to one certain way of thinking may learn too much about what cannot be done, at the expense of being receptive to suggestions of what might be worth trying.

Furthermore, there is the possibility that things which could not be done under the leadership of one man would be worth a try under the leadership of another. There have been baseball teams which played better under a new manager than they were able to play under his predecessor.

Everybody admires John Foster Dulles for what he is—a dedicated man who has never spared himself in the performance of difficult tasks. But admiration and respect for the secretary of state as an individual do not bar the possibility that a new secretary with new ideas might inspire new confidence in the home team's chances.

Firemen in Georgia answered an alarm with pajamas on—and hose, of course.

Once Over

We would like to wish a Happy New Year to Kentucky wild geese. But it would seem useless. Yuletide stories not among the uplifting ones was "Kentucky Goose Hunt" or "In Case of a Broken Hunting Law, Break the Warden."

It was a sad tale of politics, duck blinds, quick-detachable sportsmanship, a wounded bird and a game warden who got exiled to Outer Mongolia for doing his duty.

Gov. "Happy" Chandler, a White House aspirant and a man who, as baseball commissioner, was tough with violators of ethics, was involved in some shooting after hours, but he was freed with a flood of profuse apologies on the ground he didn't know the law.

"Happy" shot a goose but says it was a wounded one. The Kentucky game chief, with him during the goose hunt, and also cracked down on the warden, says it is the custom to shoot wounded geese. He holds it is an act of kindness, even if it denies the goose a sporting chance to get well in the "Noel! Noel!" season.

NOW, QUITE SOME TIME since Christmas, the game warden seems to have been shown no more mercy than the goose, although it is denied there is any plan to have him stuffed by his superiors and used as a decoy on goose hunts.

A New Year's card will do him little good. And of course it's too late for the dead goose to appreciate one. As things now stand there is a hunting code that does not give a second chance to a goose that has escaped a fatal winging. And Mr. Chandler seems among those who can't be counted on to give a sick goose the benefit of any doubt as to its physical reserves.

The game commissioner declares that he and "Happy" were not strictly hunting. They were in the swamp as "observers." Gun-toting protectors of birdlife are something new, but these are strange times.

What the wounded goose did to bring a fustle from the observation posts is not explained. But Mr. Chandler took no nonsense when he was high commissioner of America's top sport, baseball. Let's settle by just sending our New Year's card to Organized Baseball. The outlook for it in 1958 is better than that of wild geese in the Kentucky League.

NEW HAVEN ROAD, threatening to drop all passenger service, has cut out some famous trains, and some folks are calling it the New York, New Haven & Dropsy. N.Y. Central, Baltimore & Ohio and other roads are also curtailing services, holding that with truck, bus, plane and private auto competition they are victims of unnecessary roughness. Once upon a time the passenger was the white-haired boy. He got so much attention from a railroad that he could strut through the coaches. Now who wants him? The locomotive whistle no longer seem to say, "Welcome aboard." When it echoes across the hills its message has become, "I'm in trouble enough; don't bother me."

OLDEST NAME in show biz is that of Ketti Frings, who will make a mint through "Look Homeward, Angel."

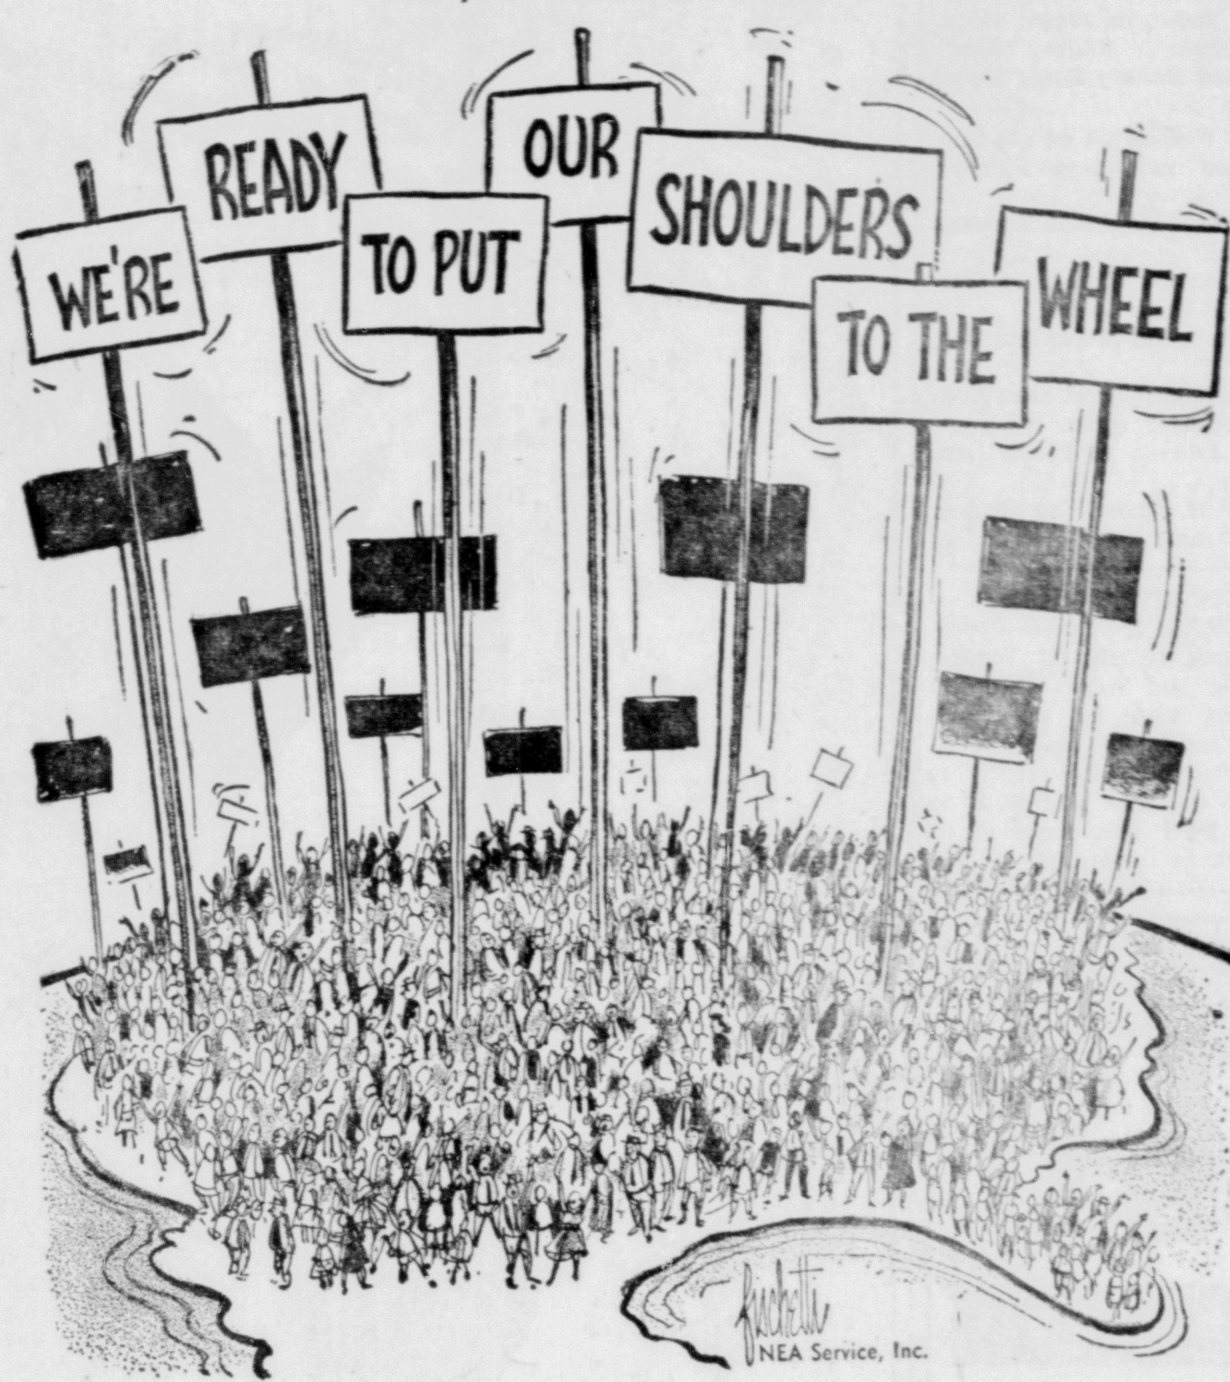

Giselle MacKenzie is close to being video's most sparkling personality. The gal glitters without half trying.

Khrushchev had a Rome tailor make him a wardrobe. He wants to be dressed to kill. (What he and all Commie chieftains must fear most is a belt in the back.)

Albie Booth has drawn some of the big football assignments this season and looks almost as fat as when he was the "mighty mite" of the Yale football team. It makes us groggy to realize that Albie played back around 1929-1931 and is now middle-aged. He is in the ice-cream business in New Haven and is carrying the ball through the competition with all the speed with which he used to carry it on the gridiron.

Fat, Happy and Half Asleep

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fat, happy and half asleep.

That's the essential picture of America in 1957 which emerged from the testimony of witness after witness before the Senate committee investigating why this country fell behind Russia in the military weapons of the future.

So 1958 will be a kind of gymnasium for us to get back in shape.

How to do it—how to drive a democracy into outstripping a dictatorship by some sacrifices without relinquishing some liberties—is the problem facing Congress next year.

This year we went in for bigger cars that burned more gas that cost more money. We bought fancier homes and appliances and better clothes. We put more money in the bank. We longed for a tax cut. We were well fed and content.

We slowed down missile-making to save on overtime. We went less than all-out on satellites and missiles, forgetting the effect the Russians' missiles and Sputniks would have on the rest of the world if they got their earth-circlers aloft first.

The Kremlin could do as it pleased. It could, as it did in the past, sacrifice generations to win the future. It could tell the Russian people what they could and couldn't have.

And it did. It left them on a living scale far below ours while it pumped its brains and resources into weapons which, unless we woke up, would leave us at their mercy someday.

It isn't the first time something like this happened to us. It happened in the 1930s—although we were struggling out of a depression then—when Hitler was arming and frankly threatening to take over the world.

We sat by then, unarmed and unarming, hiding behind the mirage of isolation, hoping that if we didn't look he might go away. We were lucky then. On our side we had time and distance.

When he did strike we had—between us and him—an Atlantic Ocean and friends in Europe who took his blows to give us time to come to our senses and build up enough strength to strangle him. But our isolation is gone. Russian missiles soon should be able to span the ocean in minutes. If the new kind of war comes we'll either be ready or have to be ready to die. We don't know how much time we have to get ready.

When a democracy like this one gets into crises—as has happened in past wars—as a people voluntarily give away some liberties and freedoms in order to get them back by overcoming the crises.

If the cold war with Russia lasts long enough, and becomes intense enough, it's possible we may feel it necessary to sacrifice some liberties even before a shot is fired.

It is even possible, in the struggle for survival against dictatorship, that we might vote ourselves into a dictatorship, although there's no sign now that such a drastic step will be necessary.

It's the task of Congress to see that doesn't become necessary by devising ways, within a still functioning and free society, to match the concentrated power of a dictatorship by the voluntary effort of democratic people.

This next year will be a memorable, perhaps a decisive one in American history, although its final achievements, or failures, may not show up for years.

The Search For Peace

By DAVID LAWRENCE

People All Over the Globe Feel Frustrated

Every year the same aspirations are expressed, the same hopes, the same prayers — that there really may come "peace on earth and good will to men."

But somehow the fears increase instead of diminish. The terror grows, and the threat of a war that could devastate the whole world is openly discussed as a possibility.

Is there an answer somewhere that has been overlooked or ignored? Could something have been done that has been neglected?

The big fallacy is that just a few leaders control the destinies of mankind and that they sit in positions of governmental power.

Actually, the power of peoples is greater than that of governments. Just because it has been habitual to negotiate with governments, the tendency now is to cry out for more negotiation — as if something magic could be achieved by sitting down with men who are unscrupulous and begging them to become transformed into men of kindness.

Villainy is not new in the world and war has always come as a result of the indifference of nations to the potential power they could wield over their own affairs if they acted in concert.

There is no need to surrender to the enemy government in Moscow to plead for a "deal." There is no need to throw our arms away and beg for mercy as so many well-meaning persons in prominent positions seem to advocate, though when confronted with the true significance of such a defeatism they back away from it with apologetic phrases.

THE TRUTH is that persons in many countries, including our own, feel frustrated. They see nothing else to do but to talk to the enemy and to trust to his generosity. But history tells a different story. Every concession to the tyrant has resulted in a miscalculation of the supposed weakness of the mendicant state. It has brought arrogance instead of conciliation. It has actually brought war.

The key to the policy that free men seek to establish is to be found in the concept that President Wilson first proclaimed in April 1917, when he differentiated between the Imperial German government and the German people.

Today there is no resentment anywhere in the free world against the Soviet peoples. There is no desire to destroy the lives of the many nationalities of human beings who occupy the vast terrain from the Baltic to the Pacific.

There is nowhere in the Western world any covetous government which seeks to annex somebody else's territory. The only desire is to live at peace with the rest of mankind.

The Soviet rulers, however, want to control the governments of the West. They have intervened in every country with their agents of ill will and discord. They want recognition for what they call the "status quo," which means a sort of ratification of their conquest in Eastern Europe, where they hold in bondage the peoples of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Rumania, Lithuania, Estonia and East Germany.

THE KREMLIN leaders want something more — they want to anesthetize the Western military forces. They want to drive American troops out of Europe by means of a tricky negotiation. There are some persons in the West who would take a chance on such crafty maneuvers — but not President Eisenhower and now Secretary Dulles.

Dictatorships will promise anything to achieve their aims. Hitler and Stalin could write treaties of non-aggression by the score. But privately they laughed at the free world which in its credulous fashion, swallowed the bait.

Two world wars — and two tragic experiences with dictators — have sharpened the minds of the peoples of the West. They will not again be caught in a trap of unpreparedness.

But, meanwhile, must there be more armament? Must there be war? The answer is that there is no way to prevent war by mere agreement with the Kremlin, because the rulers in Moscow will not keep their agreements. The only chance for peace in the world lies with the peoples of the Soviet Union.

It is possible to reach the peoples behind the iron curtain. Word-of-mouth communication, which crosses boundaries every day and penetrates to the far corners of even a sparsely populated country, can convey messages of good will. The radio can send its broadcasts to a few listeners but they in turn radiate their thoughts to millions of others.

WHAT IS NEEDED is a tremendous manifestation of human love directed constantly to all the peoples behind the iron curtain. They must be told day in and day out of the passionate craving in the Western world for peace with the peoples of Soviet Russia and the neighboring lands.

This is the kind of message which might well have been organized for Christmas day.

But, fortunately, there are 365 other days yet to come in the new year in which this can be carried on. If 1958 could be dedicated to the task of winning peoples to the banners of peace, there would be no need to worry about the horrors of war or economic upheavals. For the opportunity to make a better world would consume the peaceful energies of all mankind.

Purely Personal

By TRUMAN TWILL

The man explained everything I needed to know about the advantages of buying a live Christmas tree and planting it afterward, except what the thing would weigh when the time came to lug it into the living room. It may end up as a potted house plant.

Chances are ten to one that the private conversations you bust into this winter will be speculations about how much worse things might get before they begin to get better.

I can think of no tougher job to tackle than being responsible for picking up the pieces after traffic accidents during the holidays.

Every Christmas-time I recall with a lump in my throat my father's one and only pun. He always wrote on cards on Christmas presents that they were from "Sandy Claws."

Thanks to the urge to find something unusual for people "who have everything," a couple of Twillery kittens will start the New Year under new ownership.

I have a sense of bridging history on Christmas Eve when I take care of the sheep and realize that circumstances have given me an insight into the pastoral civilization that provided the basic concept of Christianity.

Norma Talmadge, the silent-picture star, was 60 years old when she died the day before Christmas. Her age was not a typographical error, either. Mary Pickford will be 65 next April 8.

It occurs to me that I never have enjoyed anything I did as a child more than hopping the bobsleds that farmers used to drive into town. They never objected to letting a kid ride as far as he felt like riding.

Whenever things slow down a bit, the Christmas card business booms, in case you are puzzled by the all-time high cancellations being reported by postoffices all over the country.

I did not like Charles Dickens' Christmas Carol the first time I heard it and like it even less now than I did then. Lionel Barrymore is to blame for its popularity.

As far as I am concerned, speaking of the absence of snow this Christmas, I always have figured that the fellow who dreamed about a white Christmas must have been living in Florida at the time.

I am sure it is not my imagination, but there is no such thing as a Christmas tie any more. The designs have been improving steadily for the last decade, although there still are some eye-poppers left over from the garish epoch.

That odd odor in the air today is the distillation of 1000 gallons of after-shave lotion peddled by Santa Claus, who never touches the stuff himself.

I like to say, "Saint Nicholas" over and over rapidly, to show where we got the idea that the patron saint of giving was called "Santa Claus."

Well, anyway, Christmas was fun, wasn't it?

Thought For Today

The eyes of the Lord preserve knowledge, and he overthroweth the words of the transgressor. — Proverbs 22:12.

Knowledge is the only fountain both of the love and the principles of human liberty. — Daniel Webster.

For the vision is yet for an appointed time, but at the end it shall speak, and not lie: though it tarry, wait for it: because it will surely come, it will not tarry. — Habakkuk 2:3.

He can that have patience can have what he will. — Benjamin Franklin.

Homemaking Hints

Avoid adding dust to your food along with the seasoning. Wash salt and pepper shakers and spice containers regularly. Even the cleanest home has dust settling on all exposed objects.

Fine sandpaper can save nicked fingers. This is true when glassware has little chips that don't warrant discarding the item but do offer a threat when used. Rub chipped edges gently to wear off sharp edges.

No one calls a housewife lazy if she does a job well with the least effort. One way to conserve energy when cleaning is to avoid sharp or jerky movements. Put rhythm into cleaning or polishing motions and make the task more enjoyable because it is less tiring.

A wise homemaker retraces few steps in doing a job. She does this by having a cart or basket handy with all supplies needed, such as in cleaning. This saves trips to another room for a polishing cloth, brush or liquid.

A new bathtub for baby has a rolled rim that makes it easier to carry. Its two molded-in trays will hold a washcloth and soap.

Dodge-Dunn Nuptials Held In First Presbyterian Church

Friday evening at 7:30 in the First Presbyterian Church, Miss Marilyn Gene Dodge became the bride of Robert Ovington Dunn. The church altar was decorated candelabra, for the double-ring ceremony performed by Rev. A. Laten Carter.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Dodge of 530 Franklin St. Mr. Dunn, now of Bartlesville, Okla., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Dunn of 605 E. 8th St.

Miss Anna P. Cook presented a program of organ music with R. Pinckney Hall of Albany Road, the soloist, singing, "The Lord's Prayer," and "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee."

For her wedding Miss Dodge designed and made her lovely gown of white satin brocade. It was fashioned with an empire bodice and scooped neckline trimmed with seed pearls. The long sleeves tapered to points at the wrists. The puffed skirt was draped over a hoop.

Reaching to the bride's fingertips, her silk illusion veil was held in place with a shirred brocade cap trimmed with seed pearls.

The bride's flowers were white carnations, variegated holly and pine formed in a cascade arrangement.

David Lackey of Delaware O., cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Serving as best man for his brother was Wendell D. Dunn. The ushers were Phillip Grosso of Newark, Del., Fred W. Ward of Ithaca, N.Y., and Arthur Vaughan, Robert W. Dodge, Richard Dunn and James Dunn of Salem.

elderly lady is showing these signs of mental deterioration. The most probable cause is hardening of the blood vessels of the brain. In all probability this will continue to worsen with periods of improvement and clarity of thought, during which time she may laugh at her fears. Probably this elderly lady should not live alone but needs someone to look after her.

Administration Works on Plan To Aid Teaching of Sciences

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration reportedly will propose to Congress a program of matching grants to states to encourage improved teaching of science and mathematics in the high schools.

The plan calls for the federal government to provide more than 100 million dollars to help the states supplement salaries of science and math teachers, employ additional teachers, purchase equipment and strengthen state education departments.

Other proposals also are being prepared to help meet the clamor for more emphasis on scientific and technical training in the nation's schools and colleges. The demand has been growing since Russia's launching of two earth satellites emphasized an increasing Russian technical capability.

The program, to be administered by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, would be patterned after the present federally aided vocational education program.

That department also would be authorized to set up a federal scholarship program, aid expansion of graduate schools, help the states provide more and better testing and counseling of high school pupils, and promote the teaching of foreign languages.

College scholarships, to cost 8 to 10 million dollars the first year, would be provided for talented high school students who could not otherwise go to college. Fellowships also would be provided in graduate schools.

In a related effort, more than 50 million dollars a year would be provided to the National Science Foundation for expansion of its present effort to expand teaching of science and math at all levels.

Most of that money would go for updating science textbooks, providing more fellowships and conducting more seminars and institutes for teachers in those fields.

Deaths and Funerals

Mrs. James Lucas Found Dead In Home

Mrs. Lulu Lucas, 75, of 642 Franklin Ave. was found dead Friday afternoon at 5:28 on the floor in the kitchen of her home, apparently the victim of a heart attack some 12 or 15 hours previously.

Police were summoned to the scene by Willard Crowl of 650 Franklin Ave. when Crowl became suspicious after noticing that the lights in Mrs. Lucas home had been on Thursday night and through Friday.

A local physician attributed her death to a heart attack. She had been receiving treatment for a heart condition.

Born in Belleville, W. Va., Jan. 12, 1882, she was the daughter of Jerome and Kathryn Buckley. Her husband, James Lucas, died March 22, 1936.

A practical nurse, she owned and operated the Lucas Rest Home for the past 10 years. She came here 20 years ago from Martins Ferry, and was a member of the First Methodist Church.

Survivors include four sons, Edward of Salem, Roy of Martins Ferry, Carl of Steubenville and Arthur of St. Clairsville; nine grandchildren; 13 great-grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Nellie May of Salem, Mrs. Lottie McBride of Sebring and Mrs. Amy Rosenbaum of Negley; and two brothers, Ross Buckley of Salem and Raymond Buckley of RD, Lisbon. A son William, died in 1949.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Monday at the Stark Memorial with Rev. William Snowball officiating. Burial will be in Warnock Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Memorial Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Antarctic

It also refuses to recognize claims of other countries.

Tolleson said Britain, France, Norway, Australia, New Zealand, Argentina and Chile have laid claims to large areas of Antarctica although 75 per cent of the subcontinent has been seen only by Americans.

The Soviets, he said, have not yet issued an official claim but have indicated they are going to stay in Antarctica a long time. "Whoever controls the lands down there could just play heck with us" if the Panama Canal were blown up and U.S. ships had to go around Cape Horn, he added.

Ralph Marx of Lisbon RD was acquitted on a charge of failing to yield the right of way. He was the driver of a car involved in an accident Aug. 2 at the junction of Rts. 164 and 39 northeast of Salineville in which Mrs. Emma Lesserd of Toronto was killed. Marx previously was acquitted of a charge of second degree manslaughter in common pleas court filed as the result of that accident.

Youngstown Man Dies In Two-Car Collision

WARREN, Ohio (AP)—A two-car collision early today on Ohio 90 near the junction with Ohio 304 killed Joseph G. Moss, 57, of Youngstown, the Ohio Highway Patrol reported.

REPORTS WINDOW BROKEN

LISBON — Village police are investigating the breaking of a window in the Sohio Service Station on E. Lincoln Way.

Jack Williams, owner, reported he found a large window at the rear of the building broken when he arrived at work this morning, but a spot check on tires and batteries showed nothing missing.

Police think intruders were frightened away before they could enter the building.

GET CITY CONTRACTS

The slag and loose material contract for city supplies which was let by the board of control Thursday afternoon was awarded to the U.S. Steel Slag Division and not the Gurlia Sand and Gravel Co. as reported in Friday's News.

The Gurlia firm was awarded the bid for 1-22, a compaction dirt used in the resurfacing of streets.

REPORTS ANTI-NASSER PLOT

CAIRO (AP)—A former Egyptian princess reportedly says a go-between approached her with a plot to unseat President Nasser and restore the monarchy but that she laughed it off as a joke.

The semi-official Middle East New Agency said today authorities probing the alleged plot had been told by ex-Princess Nasr Shah that she was approached in St. Moritz, Switzerland, last August.

Afro-Asians Ponder Aid Plan

Spotlight on Soviet Economic Proposal

CAIRO (AP)—The African-Asian People's Conference plowed ahead in anti-Western fields today as the spotlight centered on Russia's sweeping economic aid offer.

Subgroups of the conference's main Political Committee plunged into a discussion of such controversial East-West topics as imperialism, disarmament, racial discrimination, Algeria and Palestine.

The Soviet "big brother" offer of economic aid to all Asians and Africans was well received Friday by the delegates from 42 nations and colonies at the non-governmental conference, which is stacked with supporters of Communist policies.

Many of those voicing loud praise for the offer are exiles or fugitives from areas that receive U.S. economic aid. Some of the leftists here are frowned on by home governments that try to stay officially disconnected from Communist propaganda lines.

The offer, obviously designed to drive Western enterprise out of the East, was accompanied by broad hints that African and Asian countries should nationalize Western-operated businesses and exploit their profits as Egypt has sought to do with the Suez Canal.

This apparently appealed to many elements who shouted their assent when Soviet delegate Apushavan A. Agafonovich lauded Indonesia's takeover of some 1 1/2 billion dollars in Dutch investments.

The Soviet offer recalled Western predictions that the Kremlin would launch a drive in 1958 to win more friends in Africa and Asia with a view towards driving the West from these sources of oil and other natural resources.

Blast

known as a "gaseous" mine. It was indicated that equipment used to disburse the gas, present in varied quantities in all coal mines, had failed to function properly and the accumulation had been touched off by a spark of unknown origin.

Fullerton said the families of the trapped miners had kept a vigil at a station two miles from the disaster scene through most of the night but had been urged to return to their homes early this morning to await developments.

Although only eight men had been listed as working in the continuous loading area, company officials later discovered 11 men were there.

Ironically, 11 of the men might have been due for a layoff today because of a 70 per cent cut in personnel.

Officials of the Pocahontas Fuel Co., operators of the southwest Virginia mine, said 534 of the 775 men employed at the operation—Mina No. 31—were due to be cut off because of a decrease in coal orders.

The 14 survivors were pronounced in good physical condition and were sent home. They came out of the mine about 12:05 a.m., some 5 1/2 hours after the blast.

Worse Than Blast

Survivors said the concussion was worse than the blast itself.

"It knocked the sandwich out of my hand and knocked me over," said Mitchell Harris of Cedar Bluff.

Harris said there "was no doubt but what it was a gas explosion." State and federal mine officials rated the mine as gaseous.

The blast was described by Harris as "just like a hot blast of wind. There was no fire — just smoke and dust and a bad odor."

Discovery of the survivors some five hours after the first blast was the first contact with the men during the time they were trapped.

The men built two canvas barricades for protection but spent most of the five-hour period sitting, thinking, praying.

Astronomer

from a field near the farm house.

"The air was very clear on the farm, and I could view the stars, the moon, and the planets without having to cope with the smoky atmosphere that I encounter some nights in Salem," Gonda said.

Until six years ago he had only a reflection-type telescope that was useless when the air was not comparatively clear.

So Gonda, who has been an E. W. Bliss Co. employee for 14 years, began grinding out his own parts for a refractor-type telescope which does not depend on clear weather conditions for the most effective images.

CONSTRUCTING and mounting the refractor telescope took him almost a year, working in his spare time.

Gonda has 11 sets of lenses which have enabled him to see such objects as the "snow-capped" mountain on Mars and the green-colored atmospheric condition that surround Uranus and Neptune, which are more than two billion miles away.

On Oct. 30, while studying the moon, his favorite object of observation, Gonda noticed dark markings resembling the numbers and letter 321 between the Sea of Vapors and the Sea of Serenity in the vicinity of the Haemus Mts.

The distinct markings were caused by lava that flowed into the valleys following a recent volcanic eruption, Gonda speculates.

"They can be seen plainly with a small telescope equipped with a four-inch lens and using 40 magnifications," Gonda said.

THE BEST TIME to look is during the period when the moon is about half full until it is full, he said.

"The only time the telescope is rendered useless is when the stars appear, through the naked eye, to be twinkling. This twinkling is caused by severe atmospheric conditions surrounding them," Gonda said.

Gonda recently made a four-foot-long, reflector-type telescope which he gave to the son of one of his co-workers at the Bliss plant as a Christmas present.

Gonda and his wife, Anna Mae, have two children, Roger, 10 and Anna Mae, 6.

240 MILES FROM POLE

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP)—Sir Edmund Hillary's party has reached the point of no return on its overland trek to the South Pole. The four-man group is now 240 miles from the bottom of the world.

Hillary radioed that they covered 41 miles during the night. They have averaged from 40 to 50 miles for the past few nights.

Another team, headed by British Dr. Vivian Fuchs, is traveling towards the pole from the opposite direction. It has made only 35 miles since Wednesday and has almost 500 more to go.

STEEL PRODUCTION CUT

CLEVELAND (AP)—The work week at Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp.'s Cleveland plant has been reduced and an unknown number of employees have been laid off.

A company spokesman confirmed Friday that the plant, which employs 2,000 in the manufacture of sheet steel for automobiles, had cut production to between three and four days a week.

2 Countians Plead Innocent to Burglary

LISBON — Two East Liverpool area men pleaded guilty Friday evening before Justice of the Peace Felix Butch, to a charge of breaking and entering and were bound over to the January Grand Jury under $1,000 bonds each.

Joseph Leroy Wooley, 30, of Wellsville RD 1, and John Wayne Blankenship, 21, of East Liverpool are being held in the county jail in lieu of bonds.

They are charged with breaking and entering the home of Harold J. Ward, located about five miles northwest of Wellsville on Rt. 39, around 5:30 p.m. Thursday and stealing approximately $100 from a desk drawer.

Deputy Sheriff James Miller reported he recovered $97.05 of the money from a glass jar in Blankenship's car. Wooley was a former employ of Ward's. The latter runs a greenhouse at the rear of his home.

CHECKING UP ON THE OLD BOY — There are 12 months to go in the International Geophysical year — it extends until Dec. 31, 1958. But already considerable has been learned about the earth and its surroundings, which is the aim. Numbers above indicate discoveries.

1. Northern and Southern lights flash simultaneously, caused by radiations from the sun. 2. The magnetic equator has been charted. It runs sometimes north and sometimes south of the geographic equator. 3. Fish are having their problems since the deep and surface waters of the oceans aren't changing places as rapidly as they used to. 4. World's record low temperature: 102.1 degrees below at the South Pole. 5. Weather of past ages can be checked by ice borings. They are read like tree rings. 6. Antarctic ice, 10,000 feet thick recorded. 7. Flowing in the opposite direction, there is an ocean current 9,000 feet below the Gulf Stream. 8. A quarter-inch-long worm was fished from 16,200 feet below sea level without its exploding from the pressure change. 9. Much can be learned of the earth's surface from the satellites but Sputnik secrecy and confusion have so far concealed the value of this phase of the effort. 10. A mountain ridge 5,000 feet high has been located on the floor of the Arctic Ocean.

If it's a salesman you want, you'll look far better for you'll find a better one than a News Want Ad.

Small as it is, it packs a mighty wallop, and gets in places where a two-legged salesman can't get the tip of his toe. There are no barriers a Want Ad can't hurdle. It encounters no sales resistance because it's paid for by the advertiser and sought by the reader who buys The News to know what's for sale and who has it for sale. It's Wanted!

A News Want Ad is a tireless worker for anyone willing to hire its services.

It is a guide to business opportunities, often a promoter of an enterprise. It sells real estate, unused commodities and has a voice in thousands of transactions like no other medium of advertising.

It talks business to everybody, and is heard. For the price you pay, a News Want Ad is a force in selling you cannot afford to ignore. Better than 82,000 individual ads have been published in The News during the past twelve months and 82,000 of anything is worth consideration.

Youngstown Tops Geneva 84-69

Big Red Downs Westminster

Pens Net 14 Points
In Final 3 Minutes

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—Stuebenville and Youngstown battled to a tie in the all-Ohio final game of the National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics Tipoff Tournament. Stuebenville, upset victors over NAAIA defending champion Tennessee A & I in first-round play, Friday night defeated Westminster (Pa.), 60-50, to gain the finals. Youngstown thrilled the hometown fans in South High School field house by scoring 14 points in the final three minutes to defeat Geneva (Pa.), 84-69, and earn a chance to meet the Big Red in the title contest.

Stuebenville and Westminster relied on their defenses in the low scoring contest. The Pennsylvanians were never far behind, but they never were in the lead. At halftime, Stuebenville held a 9-point edge, 30-21.

All five of the Big Red's starters scored in double figures, with Jack Cibulka hitting for 14 points and Jim Smith, 6-6 center, and John Clark scoring 11 apiece.

Dave Rankin scored 20 points and Mike Swannich 13 for the Westminster squad.

Youngstown's Penguins were hard pressed by Geneva, but never lost their poise. With less than three minutes to go, Geneva trailed by only one point, 70-69, after battling back from a 46-33 halftime deficit. In a wild finish, the Penguins dropped in 14 points while holding Geneva scoreless.

Geneva and Westminster will meet tonight for third place in the tournament standings. The loser gets fourth place.

A strong Tennessee A & I team relegated to the role of also rans as a result of their first-round upset, breezed past West Virginia Wesleyan, 99-88. Richard Barrett, 5-3 forward, set a high scoring mark for the tournament with 38 points for Tennessee A & I. Team-mate John Barnhill scored 20.

West Virginia, eliminated after their second tourney loss, was paced by 6-10 center Ken Remley's 20-point effort.

Tennessee A & I plays Anderson (Ind.) tonight for fifth place. The loser will be eliminated from the standings. Anderson dropped Detroit Tech from the tournament with a 106-64 victory. Gary Austin was high for the Hoosiers with 26 points. Larry Anderson paced Detroit with 24.

Buckeyes' Don Clark Returns to Action

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Ohio State, already an overwhelming favorite to defeat Oregon in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day, gained new stature today as Don Clark, the Bucks' most scintillating ball carrier, returned to action.

The Akron, Ohio, junior, spark-plug of the team which copped the Big Ten title three of the last four years, is rounding into form after being on the shelf with a groin injury since the Nov. 9 game with Purdue.

Clark celebrated his 21st birthday Friday by getting into active practice for the first time in almost two months. Coach Woody Hayes, who had given up hope that his No. 1 back would see action here, said he was "much encouraged, and that Clark probably would pay, although he wouldn't start."

Oregon's Pacific Coast Conference co-champions, believed by the experts to have about as much chance as Gen. Custer had, ran through what Coach Len Casanova termed an "unsatisfactory and sluggish" workout Friday. Hayes termed the Buckeye practice "better than average."

Buckeyes Bow 87-71

To Trojan Quintet

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Ohio State's football Buckeyes were in the audience Friday night when their schoolmates took an 87-71 drubbing from Southern California on the basketball court at Pan Pacific Auditorium.

Although the Buckeyes' massive forward, Frank Howard, led both teams in scoring with 24 points, it wasn't enough to overcome the Trojan attack. It was Ohio State's sixth straight loss.

It was Ohio State's second meeting with the Trojans. OSU won the previous engagement, 48-38, in 1937.

Hawks Hand 97-96 Loss To Royals

The Associated Press
The Boston Celtics have lost only six games but their lead in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Assn. is not as imposing as that of the St. Louis Hawks in the Western Division.

The Hawks hold a 9½ game margin over Cincinnati and Detroit after defeating the Royals 97-96 Friday night. The Celtics' margin over second place Syracuse was trimmed to 7½ games as the result of a 110-96 defeat by Philadelphia in the first game of a doubleheader at New York's Madison Square Garden. New York turned back Detroit 125-120 in the other game.

Three points in the last 38 seconds by Cliff Hagan carried the Hawks to their victory. Jack Twyman missed two jump shots in the final seconds as Cincinnati failed to make good its comeback bid and went down to its ninth straight defeat. The Royals were down 13 points at halftime and rallied to take a 96-94 lead with 5 seconds showing on the clock.

St. Louis' Ed McCauley and Twyman each scored 25 points.

Bob Cousy, playing with his injured right thigh swathed in bandages, paced Boston with 28 points but Paul Arizin and Joe Graboski accounted for 6 between them for the Warriors. Arizin got 25 of them.

With 10,255 packing the Garden, the Knicks followed the Warriors' victory with one of their best shooting displays of the season. Carl Braun, making good on 11 of 14 shots from the floor, dropped in 28 points while Richie Guerin and Kenny Sears contributed 23 each. However, they were all topped by Detroit's George Yardley, who had 31.

Dayton Mailers Union Accused Of Contract 'Featherbedding'

DAYTON, Ohio (U)—An accusation of contract "featherbedding" has been lodged against a striking mailers' union by the publishers of the Dayton Daily News and Journal Herald. The two newspapers haven't printed in nine days because of the mailers' strike.

Featherbedding means to hire unneeded workmen and pay them for unnecessary or duplicating jobs.

Robert Wolfe, executive vice president and general manager of Dayton Newspapers, Inc., said Friday the featherbedding involves a union demand regarding work jurisdiction.

He said the union demands that "employees engaged in bundling printed sections published under the (afternoon) Daily News masthead . . . be prohibited from any work connected with bundling sections published under the (morning) Journal Herald masthead, or vice versa."

Wolfe said: "This demand is comparable to the night shift in a refrigerator plant refusing to work on refrigerators that had been started by the day shift."

"Such a featherbedding demand would raise costs of newspaper production without benefit to anyone."

Raymond E. Brown, president of striking Local 137, International Mailers Union, said the featherbedding charge "could not be farther from the truth."

He said: "The union is only attempting to retain what has been enjoyed in the contract in the past seven years and what has actually been in practice and workable for the past 11 months—since the time the two daily newspapers were published in one building."

The two papers used to be published in separate buildings. Wolfe's accusation of featherbedding came in a statement in which he listed what he said are the union's three contract demands.

He said the other two demands are for an increase in wages and greater vacation privileges.

Brown said wages "were not originally an issue in this strike." He said it is the company's package proposal that the union has rejected.

Wolfe outlined the company's wage offer as a $4.50 a week increase for the first year and $4 a week for the second year of a two-year contract. He said mailers have been earning $94 a week for day work, $96 for night work, both for a 37½-hour week.

Brown said the company demands that the union "give up long standing written contract provisions as to overtime. And they seek to eliminate completely from the contract a seniority provision which would cause nothing but chaos within the merged departments."

Strike negotiations, under supervision of a federal mediator, will resume Monday.

Police Continue to Ponder Case of Supposed Blacksmith

COLUMBUS, Ohio (U)—Police here continue to ponder the case of a man who insists he is a Phoenix, Ariz., blacksmith despite all indications to the contrary.

Such is the unusual case of Raynbert J. Albert, 40-year-old Lakewood, Ohio, salesman for a map and globe company in Cleveland.

Albert disappeared Jan. 17 after failing to keep an appointment with an official of the Columbus Board of Education.

Christmas Eve he showed up at a church here. He told the minister he was Donald Mack, a blacksmith from Phoenix, Ariz., and that he had killed a man in a warehouse near Union Depot, the Columbus railroad station, last January.

Minister Calls Police
The minister called in police, who were frankly puzzled. They had no unsolved murder on their books for last January.

But they held Albert, alias Mack, until a Cleveland investigating agency furnished a picture which showed Mack and Albert to be one and the same.

To be sure though, police followed through with an FBI fingerprint check and a handwriting comparison. These also showed that Mack was Albert.

But still Albert clung to his story. He was Donald Mack, he said. He was a blacksmith and had callouses on his hand to prove it. And he had killed a man in Columbus.

Identified as Missing Son

On Thursday, Albert's mother, Mrs. Clara Hensley, and his stepfather, of Garfield Heights, near Cleveland confronted this man who said he was Mack. They identified him as their son Albert, husband and father of two children.

What was the man's reaction? He said he was Donald Mack. He said Mrs. Hensley was not his mother.

Police told him he couldn't have committed a murder, that no bodies had been found. "Okay," he said, "if you say so."

Would he take a lie detector test?

No, he was afraid of such tests, he said. And anyway, "you might find that I'm lying."

The day Albert disappeared, his wallet, containing no money, was found on the street here by a policeman. A few days later, the salesman's abandoned station wagon was found. His spectacles and human blood were on the front seat.

Nationwide Search Made

A nationwide search followed. Following his surrender, Albert told police the following story:

He had come to Columbus from Phoenix in mid-January, looking for work. But before settling down, he decided to go on a drinking spree. He picked up two drinking buddies and wound up in the warehouse. An argument ensued. He slugged one of the men.

The other buddy shouted, "My God, you've killed him," and ran. Albert tried to revive the fallen man. He failed. Thinking he killed him, he too ran. He boarded a westbound train. And he kept running for nearly a year—running from his conscience, running from police.

"I couldn't sleep," he related. "not at all. I haven't really slept since it happened. And I had police hysteria. Every time I saw an officer, I ran."

Decides to Confess
Then last week he made up his mind to "confess." He packed his car and trailer and drove to Columbus from Phoenix. At an Oberlin, Ohio, motel, en route, he wrote a letter to friends in Phoenix, telling them of his "crime."

This he said, was to insure his following through on the confession.

When he arrived in Columbus, he stopped at the first lighted church he saw and confessed to the minister.

Columbus detectives theorize that if Albert was involved in a fight in a warehouse, the "murder victim" regained consciousness and walked away after the two other men fled.

Police here have dropped their murder investigation. But they continue to hold Albert until he can be checked in connection with an unsolved arson case in Amarillo, Tex., where he said he spent one day after his flight from a crime that apparently never happened.
